Presenter:

Gloria Batkin Kahn, EdD, ABPP, CGP, FAGPA, is a Past President of the American Board of Group Psychology, of the Westchester County Psychological Association, and of the Westchester Group Psychotherapy Society. She frequently presents workshops both nationally and internationally and is the author of numerous articles and book chapters and has been published in the International Journal of Group Psychology. She maintains a private practice in White Plains where she works with group, couples, individual adults and adolescents.

Description:

Using a large group town hall format, this workshop will provide an opportunity for mental health professionals to process their own feelings and reactions to the sudden wave of hate-filled violence in our society. Helpful treatment will be highlighted. Attendees will share the effects of these events upon their patients and themselves and discuss the treatment methods that have been helpful.

Learning Objectives:

Participants will be able to:

1. State three treatment strategies that have proved helpful in managing effects of violence
2. List three symptoms resulting from sudden violence
3. Note two benefits for therapists resulting from sharing their feelings with other therapists
4. List three symptoms in the definition of trauma
